Foreward

This annual is presented to you, the students and friends of Norton High School, by us, the members of the Class of 1954, as a pictorial record of the experiences which we have shared with you and the memories which we shall take with us.

As the first class to leave it's footprints in the halls and classrooms of the new Norton High, we felt a special responsibility to leave a path worthy of being followed by other classes.

As our paths now go their separate ways, we look to the future with hope and to the past with pride and with the knowledge that the people and places pictured here have immeasurably enriched our lives.

We, the Class of 1954, would like you to join with us in retracing these footprints back through the year.

Administration and Faculty

These are the people who mapped the course that our footprints have been following for the past four years.

. . . . and these are the people who kept our footprints from straying too far from the path or from slowing to a halt and who were always there when we needed help in choosing the right turn. For their sincere efforts on our behalf we express our deepest gratitude.

BI-YEARLY REPORT

Time: 13 o'clock

Date: The year 2000

Place: Somewhere in outer space

Space Cadet:
Dorothy Denning

It all began on Mars. The weather was sub-zero and if it hadn't been for my new electro-geofonic stupefier I would have frozen. The stupefier is an invention of the famous scientist Alex Wasil.

I donned my rainment, consisting of space boots and suit and trekked over to Planet Headquarters. The commander, Walter Lloyd, greeted me and gave me my next inter-planetary assignment. Strange, glowing footprints had been found on the terra of Loba Lova.....my job...get to the bottom of it all.

I bid the commander loo toodle (toodle loo backwards) and then stopped at the supply house to pick up a few essentials from Bill Kennedy, the cadet who runs the house. (TNT, toothpicks, sugar corn pops, etc., little things every cadet needs.)

I then took a jet-propelled Warner cab (Phyllis is the consolidated capitalist of the cab industry) and made ready for the trip to Loba Lova. I rang for room service and the bell-girl, Jo Anne Wallbrown, brought me my bill. Fifty cents! I realized that was rather cheap, but after all the owners were friends of mine. Marilyn Sholley, Sarah Van Hyning and Lorna Fairbee had bought the Hilton hotels, but only on one condition....that Nicky Hilton come with them! I gave Jo Anne a space dugat as a tip and then went down to the dining room for lunch.

I was just in time for the hotel's show. The Belle of Mars, Jane Hickie and her troupe: Beverly Lott, Kathryn Byrd and Alice Lydic were just starting their act. It is reported that they have so much rhythm in their feet, they put their shoes on with a French horn.

Ernie Kiminecz and Pat Harter were doing a magic act. Ernie was trying to make Pat disappear.

The waiter, Paul Kuivinen, took my order (starfish and fried squib with a space float for dessert). I ate hurriedly and then went to the landing field to catch the seven o'clock rocket for Loba Lova.

I bought my ticket from Blanche Jeffreys and then quickly found a seat. I had something very important to read. I was a whole week behind on that famous comic strip, Pogo, from the United States. It has been altered a trifle though; instead of Albert the Alley-gator to help Pogo, there is a chap named Larry Neitz.

Just as I settled down to read, I heard a scream and the alarm rang. Duty was calling or should I say ringing. I hated to leave Pogo and Larry, but I ran to the control room.

There they were....glowing footprints all over the floor. The pilot, Ernie Wathey, was trying to calm the poor stewardess, Alice Boss, who was practically in hysterics.

I contacted Mars to have five cadets waiting for me when I landed and then went back to the passengers to see if I could get some clues....Strange things were happening!

The first one I interviewed was Lyle Saenger, the famous author of Ten Easy Ways To Flunk A Course. He said he would be glad to help me, but he knew as he put it, "Nothin'"....Sitting behind him was Janice Tilson, the famous telephone star of FOREVER FEMALE. Just before the bell rang, she had seen a strange glow in the control room. My first clue!

The president of the NFLA (National Free Loaders Association) Troy Parks, was aboard the rocket, but he couldn't help me. He did get my last Milky Way candy bar, though.

As I started back to my seat I heard clapping. Four puppeteers, "Punch" Paolano, "Judy" Hawkey, "Kukla" Krska and "Ollie" Ondo were showing the passengers their respective talents. "Punch" is just as pugnacious as ever!

The rocket soon landed and I was confronted by five miserable excuses for cadets. There was Troy Anderson, an ex-marine, although I must admit he is likeable if you give him time (and that is what he is usually doing) along with Tom Haynes, John Miskie, and Ronnie Stamper with a portable card table. It is a well-known fact that they are eucher addicts. Last but not least, Richard "Mildew" Milliron, the palpitating heart throb of the kindergarten set.

In spite of their short comings, they proved an amiable lot. We made hasty plans to meet back at the rocket at eleven o'clock. We then separated.

I saw a faint light flickering in the distance. Something seemed to compel me to come closer. As I drew nearer, it suddenly went out. A hand was laid on my shoulder! Fear gripped my supersonic heart and I stared into the face of.....Fred Ferry, the crime syndicate leader. He warned me to get out of space and then vanished around the building. Friendly people these Martians! I was still trembling as I made my way to the skid row of Loba Lova.

I passed a dingy dive, where mellow music was drifting up towards the street. I fought my way through the smoke and sat down, ordering a ginger ale.....straight, from the bartender, Allan Ballard. Leonard Blair and his Space Cats were featured there. Fred Wheeler was playing a mean saxophone, Milan Trubatch, the bass fiddle, and Mary Lou Echard, the tambourine. I was just sitting there musing over my progress on the footprints case, when two hard guys, Dick "Cookie" Csuhta and Bob "Babo" Baysinger closed in on either side of me. They talked in monosyllables, because the ace detective, Ford White, was sitting across from my table.

They told me that if I wanted a hot tip I should go to the AtomicEnergyFactory at midnight. They also said that their boss, Shirley "DOLL FACE" Culp had her eye on me. It seems "Doll Face" is in a little trouble. She is up for a murder rap. Beverly Ingersoll the "Underworld Queen" was trying to muscle in on "Doll Face's" territory and she had her ace torpedo, Patty Philips, rub her out. They aren't too worried though, because they have the famous criminal lawyers, Roy "Spring-em-quick" Kisor and "Long Term" Lance on the case. Not to mention that the case is coming up in front of the crooked judge, Mack Smith.

I thanked them for the bit of news and went out to the street. A news-girl was yelling EXTRA and I called her over. As she handed me my paper, I recognized Patsy Boyes. She told me June "Bone Crusher" Sidwell was having a tag match with the terrible terror from Mars. Patsy seemed rather nervous. I hear her boss, Kenneth Guthery, the editor of the Daily Blab is hard to please.

On the front page, there was a picture of the Mayor of Mars, Stanley Fudala. He is planning a clean up campaign. Janine Lewis and Loa Mae Klase are head of the detail department. They pick up all the details on Main Street. We call them street cleaners back in Akron!

There was a write-up about the famous test pilot, Donna Wilmoth. Donna and Jerry Allman, the golden gloves champion, were helping Mary Hannah, who is the head of Mar's City Hospital, in her campaign for blood.

Sandra Sagadencky and Betty Thayer, the world-reknowned girl hockey players are opening in Jupiter again. Also appearing is Sarah Jane Powell, Akron's answer to Gene Krupa.

Pat Partridge is the chemist who invented strepto-ino-mio-sypin, a drug that cures everything from colds to ingrown toenails.

Shirley Darmstadt was committed to the Mars State Mental Hospital. She lost her mind trying to put a bag on David Thomas.

The famous scientist, Dorothy Petrovitch, has invented a new economy size cake of soap. It weighs fifty pounds. The main trouble with her discovery is that it is a little awkward to hold. But her assistant Jackie Ferry had pretty well solved that. Just get all wet and rub up against it.

I hailed another Warner cab and was propelled by the cab driver, Max Dimitroff, to the best place to eat in Loba Lova, according to "Maxi the Taxi." We stopped at the Strato-Sphere. The Three Spades were singing there: Dallas "Tonsils" Thompson, Richard "Right Sharp" Rennie and Vincent Danko. They used to be the Four Spades, but the fourth member, John Jay Green, was ostracised because of something he once sang, "Cool Water!"

After their act, "Tonsils" came over and sat down at my table. He said that Donna Mong and Elaine Stefanek had started an Alcoholics Anonymous for poor unfortunates. Catherine Anderson and Eileen Benchot are their star boarders.

He also mentioned that Jim Susong, Bill Wasil, and Ray Stiles had joined the Globetrotters, and that the three of them had made All-American. Their coach? Ruth Walters.

Just then I remembered I had to meet the cadets at eleven o'clock. I paid my bill and got my hat from the hatcheck girl. I did a doubletake when I recognized Julia Groom! (IN a pink and black striped outfit?)

The cadets had nothing to report except that Jane Young and Eleanor Baker had opened their own 5 and 10 cent store, and that Janet Miller is the president of a multi-million dollar concern that packs sardines.

I told the cadets of our midnight appointment at the Atomic Factory and we took a flying saucer over to it. The hour of intrigue was nearing.

The watchwoman, Donna Mong, let us in the main gate and then ushered us to the foreman, Gary Starr's office. His secretary, Shirley Thompson, told us that he was in Plant A and that the office girl, Anna Lindh, would take us there. Anna said that Sandra Ries was an accomplished pianist and was the female threat to Liberace.

She also said Edith Langford had a job teaching the parakeets in the Mars' zoo to say "sho-nuff."

Just as we entered Plant A, the lights went out. The factory took on an eerie glow! Gary was quick to rush to our sides to prevent us from becoming alarmed. He explained that the walls were painted with phosphorus paint to make them radioactive. All at once I noticed some glowing footprints.

I broke into a run and grabbed what I thought would be the answer to the footprints case, Bruce Roberts. He was quick to explain: (1) He had accidentally spilled some paint (2) I too, had left a trail of footprints.

Things were beginning to add up, the footprints could have been those of any of the factory workers and the glow was probably caused by paint on their clothing. I apologized to Bruce and the cadets and I made ready to blast off for Mars.

As we boarded the rocket I could hear Loba Lova's base station trumpet player, Lois Seiberling, playing "Home Sweet Home" and that is where I'm soon going to be.
